LET'S PLAY HOCKEY

Herb Brooks' Letter To Moorhead Prepsters Goes To The Heart Of Hockey

The following is a letter from Herb Brooks, New York Rangers Hockey Coach. Coach and operator of Minnesota Hockey Schools

"Dear Moorhead Hockey Players:

I would like to share with you some of my thoughts to the obligations of a young hockey player.

WHETHER A PLAYER realizes it or not, he has a certain code by which he is expected to live by. He has certain responsibilities he must fulfill to his community, his school, and to his teammates.

Because sometimes he lives in the limelight, it is possible for an athlete to over-emphasize his importance. If so, he is missing out in the greatest joy a performer can have in later life as he looks back upon his hockey career.

THE ONE THING that will stand out most in his adult life — both from self-satisfaction and respect from others — is a memory that he lived by the code. Athletes have a code of responsibility, whether or not they realize it.

SINCE THEY do become well-known by playing games before crowds, athletes are watched more closely by the general public and most youths. This is the responsibility they must accept; for if they are to receive the acknowledgements of their fans, they must also measure up to those peoples' opinions. This, of course, makes it imperative that he train. He will not fool people long if he does not do the things a clean-cut young man should be doing. Team spirit is another thing a winning athlete must possess. He must be ready to inspire his mates, his followers, and his school chums.

LOYALTY AND DEPENDABILITY go hand in hand. A boy who is loyal to those with whom he associates is also dependable. For his loyal nature is the trait that will make him dependable to carry his load, or even a little bit more.

SLOW AS IT MAY SEEM, while an individual is passing through school, the time is short. Soon the player becomes another citizen who must carry his load in society when he finishes playing. For the bad habits he has picked up as a young player will stay with him and get worse. And the bad name that he got for breaking faith will continue to deteriorate.

It is a wise boy who will live by the code while performing his athletic task. He will find that game in and game out he can do a better job, and since satisfaction and performance is the goal everyone seeks, he will find that self-satisfaction and pleasure will reach its greatest potential because he has lived according to the rules.

I CAN ASSURE YOU that when recruiting for the University of Minnesota, and scouting and recruiting for the 1980 Olympic Team, I was looking for more than a player. I was looking for a well-rounded young man who will live by a code and make certain sacrifices to contribute to his team's success, and hopefully, contributing to society when his playing days are finished.

GOOD LUCK to you in the next few years. I know that hockey will be both challenging and rewarding to you in many ways."
